

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A gutter scoop includes a first "U" shaped scoop with a rearwardly extending elongate handle. The scoop is open at the front and closed at a rear portion thereof. A lower surface of the handle when invented defines a second smaller "U" shaped scoop. This second scoop is effective for cleaning smaller creases and clearing of clogged downspouts or discharge locations. In a preferred embodiment each scoop includes gradient lines defining specified volumes.